

BETTINA STEFANAK

Bettina is a licensed investigator with 10 years' experience in fraud and background investigations.

In 2006 she began her career as an investigator in Vancouver, Canada, working for the Canadian K9 Group's (CKG) investigation division, where she specialized in insurance fraud and surveillance operations. Bettina was assigned the position of lead investigator and ultimately case manager in 2008, managing accounts and supervising a small team of investigators.

During her time with CKG she became an active member of ASIS International and the Canadian Pacific Chapter as their Volunteer Coordinator. Bettina was part of the Vancouver Operation Co-operation Society, a joint operation between private security, local businesses, and the Vancouver Police Department to combat property crime in the district 1 area of Vancouver. She left CKG Investigations in 2009 to work independently and as a contractor to other firms, such as Ravenhill Risk Control and Lions Gate Investigations.

Prior to moving to Washington State, Bettina lived in London, England where she earned the Professional Certified Investigator (PCI) designation through ASIS International in 2012. She is also a member of the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE) and the International Association of Marine Investigators (IAMI). She has since continued her career in the security and investigation industry, working in both business development and as an investigator. She has successfully served as Secretary of the board of the ASIS Puget Sound Chapter for 2 ½ years.

Bettina was born and raised in Switzerland, holds a degree in Commerce and speaks 3 languages; English, German and French. Before becoming an investigator, she owned a small interior design firm in Vancouver, Canada and enjoys an extensive background in aviation and the marine industry.
